Event Report

Title	Workshop on “Research Output Optimization”
Department	Research and Development
Date	From: 11.11.2024	To: 11.11.2024
Time	From: 02:00 PM	To: 04:00 PM
Brief Description (4-5 Lines Max)	A one-day workshop on “Research Output Optimization” was organized at New Horizon College in collaboration with the Research and Development Department of New Horizon College of Engineering and IIC. The session was led by Dr. Vinoth Kumar, Professor and Associate Head Innovation Ambassador, Department of R & D, New Horizon College of Engineering. The workshop was structured into two parts. The first half focused on introducing research, its significance in today’s academic environment, the necessity of publications for faculty members, and understanding the requisites for successful publication. In the second half, Dr. Vinoth Kumar provided hands-on training to the faculty members. He covered topics such as research paper writing, identifying quality Q-rated journals, and the process of getting published through IEEE conferences. Dr. Kumar also highlighted common errors made during the submission process, shared tips for getting papers accepted, and discussed plagiarism. He addressed several common issues faced by authors, including fixed mindsets, lack of creativity, limited vocabulary, difficulty in conveying thoughts, and uncertainty about starting the writing process. The faculty members appreciated Dr. Kumar’s insights and training. Overall, the workshop was highly beneficial, with 28 faculty members participating. The attendees expressed their gratitude to the Management, Principal, Dr. Vinoth Kumar, and the R & D Department of NHCE for organizing such a valuable FDP program. The feedback was overwhelmingly positive and encouraging. Objectives if the session: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> To help the faculty members to understand the need of publishing in Q rated Journals which are recommended and accepted by various educational institutions. To highlight the various avenues of publications.
